

A map of the Karaman district, which is an irregular polygon. It is divided into several smaller, irregular polygons representing different administrative areas. One of these areas, located on the western side of the district, is shaded in a dark red color, indicating the location of the study site.

A map of the southern part of the Iberian Peninsula, showing the outline of the region. A small area in the south, corresponding to the study area, is highlighted in red.